LARGE BLUE ENVELOPE

ALABAMA COURT JUDGES REPLY TO COMPTROLLER DURHAM.

Secretary Manning Asks Only the Unconditional Release of the Blind Law.

Citizens—A Poet and a glove maker.

Naval—Washington—Notes.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—A large blue envelope, big enough for a stack of flour, encumbered the First comptroller's desk. It had a melancholy appearance, as all such envelopes have with the seal of the state department upon them, and the name of the postmaster and the compiler, "an estimating, if not an exhaustive, opinion from Judge Harlan and Mr. Crewell about the legality of their acts in the matter of the Alabama claims committee."

"Will you tell what the substance of their argument is?"

"Not now, and perhaps not very soon. I think Secretary Bayard is the only one who has had the necessary evidence to consider the case satisfactorily. He wrote a long letter to Judge Harlan about the accounts of the court, and the judge's reply is enclosed in this fountain by twenty envelopes."

"Have you a suspicion as to what the grounds of his defense are?"

"Well, yes; necessity is the first and last of the argument of both Mr. Harlan and Mr. Crewell."

"What effect has the presence of such a formidable document had upon you?"

"I am of the same opinion now that I was in the beginning, and you can say that Secretary Bayard is just as positive, too, that the proceeding has been without warrant of law."

"What means—"

"That not a dollar will be allowed to compensate the extra expenses incurred by the plaintiff in his suit by law. No, not a dollar will be allowed Mr. Crewell until the court complies with the mandate of congress."

"You haven't interfered with the judge's pay?"

"Not at all, because that question was not before me. The legality of the organization is a matter which belongs to the secretary of state, and it is for him and his department to decide. I do not know what the stand the white subject is now before the attorney general for his opinion. But, as I said before, that does not concern this office until the opinion of the law office is given, warranting a suspension of the judge's salary."

"Would you mind with that?"

"I do not believe that either the lawyers who are interested or the officials of the court really think they are right in suspending the salary of the judge. Of course you would expect them to defend their course when it is shown to be in the wrong, but this is not an abstruse problem. It is simply this: Did Congress give the court authority to suspend the salary of the Geneva award fund? My experience in the house on the appropriations committee would teach me better, even if it were only a matter of interpretation of the statutes. The question is, did Congress give the court authority to suspend the salary of the judge in view of the fact that he had been suspended by the act of law?"

"The court is not bound by the interpretation of law, of contempt for the plainest provisions of statutes and utterly ignoring specific duties imposed by the act creating the court. Listen to this:

"There is nothing in the Geneva award fund! My experience in the house on the appropriations committee would teach me better, even if it were only a matter of interpretation of the statutes."

"The compensation of the anti-Moscow convention in New York passed by the act of the United States, provided for Section 5 of the act of congress, and a court of Appeals has approved June 1, 1879, shall not exceed $5,000 per annum?"

"Is there anything complicated or ambiguous about those prescriptions and restrictions? Yet there has never been the slightest regard paid to the fact that the Geneva award fund well has drawn $8,000 per annum according to the salary of the president of the Bury Civil, passed March 3, 1878?

"That the compensation of the counsellor of the United States provided for by Section 5 of the act of congress, and a court of Appeals has approved June 1, 1879, shall not exceed $5,000 per annum?"

"There is nothing in the vestige of a voucher that has ever been approved by the court; no allowance has been 'apportioned in each claim adjudicated,' nor has he drawn his 'reasonable compensation' upon the certificate of one of the judges, but according to the record of the Geneva award fund, he has drawn $8,000 per annum."

The Somerset Reporter is down on camp meetings. It says they are "an unholy, money-making, religious evil."

The Times-Democrat, of Flemingsburg, has asked the grand jury of Nicholas County to investigate "the den of iniquity at Deering camp ground." The Times-Democrat speaks as though it had been there.

The cattle disease, pleuro-pneumonia, in the region of Falmouth, is gradually spreading. The farmers near the Harrison County line are greatly excited by its appearance in that locality, this week, in the herd of cattle owned by David Banrock. The herd numbers 14. Two of the number are down with the disease. They were twice exposed to the contagion lately by being driven past Frisbie & Lake's herds to and from Cynthiana, where they were offered for sale. The farmers are making determined efforts to eradicate the complaint. A fund is being collected to buy up and kill all the exposed cattle. Frisbie & Lake have offered, for $7,000, to destroy their herd that cost them $20,000.

KENTUCKY NEWS.

Louisville has $170,497.77 in her treasury.

The corn and tobacco crop of Monroe County has been injured by dry weather.

The grand jury is again after the gamblers at Louisville. Eighty indictments were returned against them last Wednesday.

An unknown disease is destroying the cattle in Daviess County. One farmer averages his loss at $100 per day. The cattle become listless, then refuse food, and death soon follows. An examination shows that the cattle bladders full of blood and the feet swollen.

The Lexington Press says: Messrs. Megilton, Dodge and others, sole owners of the Kentucky Union Railroad, have sold their immense combination to an Eastern syndicate for the sum of $400,000. The five owners cleared about $50,000 each on their investment and sale.

A Chronic Kicker.

A good sombre story is traveling around among artistic remonstrants, and the Memphis Times reproduces it for the benefit of those who have not heard it. An old Hebrew, who has been a chronic kicker since he was a boy, has been getting into heaven after little other trouble. As he looked around his now quarters, he discovered an acquaintance, sitting on the edge of a cloud, thumping his harp. "I am the Devil," said the non-conformist over to him. Evidently he was an old resident in heaven. He had on a lovely gown that suggested the purity of the morning dew. His harp was an exclusively beautiful instrument ornate with gold and orange leather. On his head was a splendid crown that fitted him like one of Wright's or Leydi's hats. The Jew paused in admiration and said:

"Well, how you was?"

"I don't know," replied the angel. "This is a magnificent place, and I never knew what happiness was until I came here. How do you like it?"

"I don't like it at all."

"Why?"

"Den, ven ye was crossing dot river, de flat-boats upset and I was scalped."

"Yes."

"Den, dot ladder was too tall. I was utterly exhausted when I got into Heaven."

"Ah."

"Den, dot harp van n. g. How de devil can a man make moosic on a harp mit one string?"

"Den, dot is hard."

And the Jew removing the halo from his head and looking at it with disgust, "look at de helloc; it was two sizes too big."

Certain individuals have circulated the report I had the hand who was working for the town of Chester, to wheel dirt out of the ditches on to my lots at the expense of the town. I wish every reader and especially the author of this report to note that it is a wilful and malicious lie. If I continue this work I shall certainly require them to prove their statements or suffer the penalty.

1122 JAMES F. LEE.

The Yacht Race.

LONDON, Sept. 12.—Several evening papers in the morning come to consider the question of the right of yacht races. The Globe, referring to the Geneva having refused to sail over the course, said: "For perhaps some keen yachtsmen will not altogether approve of this magnanimity, their objection will be that the race would be as strictly adhered to in yacht racing as in other branches of sport. It will be their contention that the spirit of the Puritan never fails to be manifested for his blundering seamanship. Of course, there is not the slightest suspicion of foul play, but it is inconceivable that a similar accident might be brought about by design, in order to secure the postponement of the race. Try to get the yachtsmen to do this, and we come to the weakest point in these international contests. Every yachtsman of experience knows that when two cliques of different minds are engaged, there must be a decided opposition to either weather which will favor one more than the other."

On the other hand, there is a long leader in the Daily Telegraph, which, commenting on the accident, says: "Yachting law, however, is not so strict as to prohibit the members of the Puritan club clearly in the fault, the race committee very justly decided that the yachtsmen should sail out of the harbor alone, and so obtain the sense of an undisputed heat in favor of his flag. We need not tell the public what was the decision of Sir Richard Sutton. He most properly said that he had given America to the world, and that the Americans, in turn, had given him the name of champion, and not to match on one side or the other any technical advantage."

"The owners of the Puritan were not bound by the rules of the club. They did not for an instant dispute the equity of the committee's decision, and freely expressing their sorrow at the mishap, offered to bear all the expenses of Sir Richard's repairs. Everybody, however, will be glad to see the representatives of two such nations, who were fairly and squarely to test the sea virility of their respective champion craft, and not to match on one side or the other any technical advantage."

"We hasten to express our firm persuasion that if the Geneva had made such a decision, it would have been the right to claim a victory. New York, without an instant's hesitation, would have waved their advantage in the same spirit. Such honesty, in pleasure as well as in business, is the truest characteristic of the Anglo-Saxon blood, and is, or ought to be, as strong a sentiment as the passion for triumph."

The Times has a long cable about the battle, giving the names and what each side lost. The Times, the Forbes, Tannay, Scoville and Sir Richard Sutton immediately following the collision, with selections from interviews with Capt. Carter, Mr. Roosevelt Schuyler and Morris, Burgess and Forster. The Daily News has a detailed cable narrative, which is double leaded, with the heading "Exposure of the Geneva," "Censure of the Puritan's Captain."

Reasons for Peace.

LONDON, Sept. 12.—It is evident that the Spanish semi-official organ, La Epoca, considerably increases the peaceable tone by publishing a distinct German paper year.

Even Spanish pride comprehends that the German navy has twice the tonnage, four times the horses power, twice the armor strength and about twice the weight of guns of the British admirals.

It will pay you to call at Mrs. Magie Archdeacon's, East side of Market street above Second, and examine her stock of fine millinery before buying elsewhere.

She has on hand a full supply of handsome goods of the very latest style and best quality.

Good for the Child.

The ailments of childhood need careful attention and wise treatment. Some people think "anything is good enough for a child, and there isn't much the matter with it anyway." But judicious mothers know better, and do as Mrs. H. W. Perry, of Richmond, Va., does. She says: "I take Brown's Iron Bitters and give it to my children with the most satisfactory results." The following item, from our Sardin correspondent, appeared in Friday's issue of this paper: "The Watson barbecue, on Saturday, was a success, enjoyably and spiritually. 'The veteran Democrat,' like Napoleon at the passage of the bridge at Lolie, went in well-heeled—music, feasting and dancing. The old man marked everything paid. 'Rah for Watson.' Mr. John W. Watson called on us this morning and requested us to say that he furnished the music, only, for the Watson barbecue, and paid for it. He wants it distinctly understood that he had nothing whatever to do with anything else that was provided for the people on the above occasion."

On the Gas Question—Lively Discussion at the Meeting of Council Last Night.

Contract With Citizens Gas Light Company Amended and Ratified—Proceedings.

An adjourned meeting of the City Council was called to order Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock, by President John P. Phister, Messrs. Chenoweth, Stockton, Martin, Hechinger, Frost, Wm. Rudy, Conrad Rudy, Blanchard, Matthews and Fitzgerald answered the roll-call. Messrs. Alexander, Yancey and Wallingford came in later. The council chamber was comfortably filled with citizens, who took a deep interest in the proceedings. President Phister stated the object of the meeting to be to take further action as to the contract with the Citizens Gas Light Company; that since the last council meeting, the Committee on Proposals and Grievances in accordance with instructions, had consulted with Colonel Wedsworth as attorney for the city; that the contract first made with said company had been altered so as to give the city a first lien on all the works, pipes, mains and real estate, and the committee now recommended the adoption and signing of the contract, as altered, by the President of the Council and City Clerk, and that it then be placed on record in County Clerk's office. A motion to that effect was made and seconded.

Mr. A. M. Cochran was granted the floor. He spoke nearly an hour on the subject. He admitted his connection with the old gas company, but said he appeared as a tax-payer, and prospective consumer of gas. Reminded the council of the capacity in which they were acting—as representatives of the people and not as individuals. They should be actuated by what was the public interest alone, and not with the purpose of injurying any one. If public interest did not demand any action on their part none should be taken. He spoke of the contract with the Citizens Gas Company, and claimed they were not legally or morally bound by it, because said company had not been legally organized when the contract was made. They were not bound, morally, he said, because one of the members of the new gas company was once the agent of the council to investigate the gas question, and had suppressed, or withheld a proposition, or plan, to regulate this matter. He maintained that the right way, and the best plan, is to allow but one gas company in the town and have it under the complete control and management of the council. Two companies would be sure to create competition, and this always resulted, in the course of time, in a consolidation of all the companies, when the price of gas would go back as high, if not higher, than ever.

He referred to Cincinnati, where the Board of Aldermen, some years ago adopted General Hickenlooper's plan, and refused to allow competition to come in. He cited a number of instances to show that consolidation invariably resulted when competing companies were allowed in a town. "When combination is possible, competition is impossible."

He cited cases where Congress was petitioned twice, and refused to allow competing companies to enter the city of Washington, the House Committee reporting adversely to the petition of gas companies in both cases for the reasons above mentioned. Acting for the old gas company, he said it was willing to place the whole matter in the hands of the City Council to arbitrate and decide upon the price of gas, hereafter, that his company was ready to enter into a contract with the city to that effect.

Under the contract with the Citizens Gas Light Company, the city was bound for ten years at the rates of $1.50 per 1,000, and $20 per lamp, no matter how cheap gas might be in the meantime made under new improvements and inventions.

His company did not propose to bind the city for any limited time. It was willing to leave the whole matter with the City Council to change and alter the price at any time it might wish to do so. His company was willing to execute bond to perform and live up to a contract to this effect. He claimed that this plan had been suggested to one of the Gas Committees who was now a member of the new company, and that the suggestion had been suppressed or withheld from the council. Closing, he reiterated that he was speaking as a tax-payer and prospective consumer of gas. If he had erred in any of his remarks, it was not intentional. He suggested the appointment of a committee to further investigate the question before final action was taken and offered a resolution to that effect.

Mr. Fitzgerald called for question on his motion to adopt report of committee.

Mr. Judd said he, if any one, was responsible for the suppression charged by Mr. Cochran. He denied that any plan had been suppressed or withheld by the Gas Committee.

Judge Phister was granted leave to speak. He suggested that when fifteen gentlemen proposed to act for 7,000 or 8,000 people, they should act slowly. They should inform themselves fully before taking any final action on such a momentous question. He advised the council to adopt Mr. Cochran's resolution, and defer final action until the matter could be more fully investigated. Hoped they would move slowly and protest at a citizen against any hasty action.

Proceeding to speak of the old gas company and the right to alter its charter, he was interrupted by Messrs. Judd and Fitzgerald with some pertinent questions. An animated discussion followed. Sarcastic remarks were made, Mr. Phister wanted to know if Mr. Fitzgerald was still a member of the council, he understood he was holding a Federal office. Mr. Fitzgerald said his resignation as a member of council was before that body—he had never been acted on—consequently, he was still a member. President Phister requested them to confine themselves to the question. During the confusion Mr. Stockton asked for a reading of Mr. Cochran's resolution referring the matter to another committee, and moved its adoption. Mr. Hechinger seconded the motion.

Judge Phister offered more suggestions in favor of resolution, and he and Mr. Fitzgerald indulged in a few more spirited remarks.

Mr. R. A. Cochran, Sr., got the floor, and said this matter wasn't personal with him. He could afford to lose what he had in old company. Council's action might hurt others of our citizens. Aluded to a widow and a crippled boy who had all their money in stock of old company. He proposed to fight the matter out. It wouldn't rest here.

Dr. Martin wanted to know whether the contract with the new company was binding on the council. The council had acted with a full knowledge of the condition of the new company all along. He, for one, had been in favor of old company all along, but thought it had defrauded making the right proposition until it was too late. The new company had acted in good faith, and had gone to considerable expense already, and was disposed to do all asked of it to secure the fulfillment of its contract. He, for one, had acted in good faith and was not disposed to continue the question any longer. He wanted it settled now.

A discussion as to the legality of the contract with the new company was participated in by Messrs. Judd, Hechinger, Rudy, Cochran and others.

Mr. Wallingford, who came in late, asked for information. Mr. C. H. White appeared and explained his connection with the question.

Messrs. Wallingford and Chenoweth coincided with Dr. Martin's views, and were opposed to any continuance of the question. They had acted in good faith with the Citizens Gas Light Company and proposed to stand by what they had done.

The year and nays on the adoption of Cochran's resolution to refer the matter to another committee for further investigation were called, and resulted in a vote of six to eight against its adoption.

Yea: Messrs. Frost, Wm. Rudy, Conrad Rudy, Stockton, Hechinger, Alexander, Nays: Messrs. Phister, Martin, Fitzgerald, Chenoweth, Wallingford, Mathews, Blanchard and Yancey.

The committee's report was adopted. The contract as it stood is to be recorded in County Clerk's office. The company gives the city a first lien on all its property in this city, as a security for the full performance of what it has promised to do.

HELP THE PERISHING.

THE CYCLONE SUFFERERS NEED AID
BADLY AND PROMPTLY.

Women and Children Prostrated and Severe
of Persons Sickened Through the Terrible Excitement—An Appeal for Dollars and Dimes—Notes.

WASHINGTON C. H., O., Sept. 12.—Huster Haggart, night operator at the telegraph office, lost his hands. J. C.
Vogel, hurt in the Old Folger Building, dangerously, is growing worse. The other wounded are recovering. The work of repairing is being pushed. One hundred families are sheltered. The miasma are still on duty. The men are playing. The Hill gang from Springfield were jailed.

Prostration following the excitement has made many sick. Scores of women and children are very ill, and the doctors are very busy. The number of houses totally inhabited is over 300. The cemetery is in ruins. Costly monuments were crushed.
The ground is covered with dead birds.
Many houses and cows were killed and charred, vineyards and orchards were in track of the cyclones were destroyed. The stricken people must have generous aid from abroad.

Consevener John Little, of the Eighth
District, makes the following statement:
"The destruction here is not so generally swelling as at Jamestown, but it is vastly greater. The general course of the tornado was from southwest to northeast through the city, and centered in the center. Its general width was about six hundred feet with occasional breaks to the right or left. In its course of a mile and a half in town, there is the exception that no houses escaped that were not of stone. Most of them damaged to property are marked, and in some cases, are marked, and in others, are sheltered. The injuries ranged from the shattering of windows to every stage of destruction. If a single house in the portion escaped harm, I have not noticed the exception. In two blocks alone practical men have estimated the loss to buildings at $60,000. The damage to goods is not less than $10,000. The loss to personal property does not fall short of $20,000. No class of property escaped.
Dwellings of all grades, public halls, churches, schoolhouses, fell prey to the storm's fury. The individual losses, known to me, will amount to $100,000. The total loss to the community will exceed a quarter of a million. These are total, as they are not covered by insurance. They fall most largely, but not most disastrously, upon the working classes. The devastation will be most seriously felt by the poor,
who have come in for their full share.
I should say as many as forty houses occupied by poor families were utterly demolished.
The relief committee estimates that the sum of $10,000 will be required to aid the poor committees here. It is reported that a hundred families will need assistance because of losses incurred. Some of them, as I know from personal observation, are relatively destitute. Numbers of them are on the streets, having nowhere else to go.
In business men, as a rule, will be heavily burdened to make their own necessary repairs.
Aid for the suffering poor must therefore come from outside sources. It will require many contributions to alleviate suffering, and there should be no delay in furnishing it. There is a reluctance among citizens to ask assistance. They should not be required to ask. It will be done without the asking, and comes genera-ously. Winter is close at hand, and the relief committee, which is the most excellent one we have all here, will do what it can at hand to provide shelter for the necessitous cold weather. Every dollar sent the chairman, Col. H. B. Maynard, Washington C. H., will be applied to the relief of the needy poor. I trust the necessity for prompt assistance will be appreciated."

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 12.—In the Dauphin county court the test case in which the constitutionality of the act prohibiting the manufacture of oleomargarine is to be tried,
was called up. The commonwealth was represented by James MacVeagh, U. S. Atty., and District Attorney Michael C. Conroy, while the defense was carried by ex-Senator Gordon, of Philadelphia, and Lyman D. Gilbert, esq.
At the outset the defense acknowledged that the law was unconstitutional in so far as it compelled the manufacturer to instruct the jury to render a verdict accordingly. This was done and the jury discharged Senator Gordon then agreed the law in the case, which was to be unconstitutional, was contrary to the bill of rights, prohibiting as it did the manufacture of an article which was beneficial to the public. He also claimed the name of the bill defective. Hon.
